| Name | derived variables - physical activity |
| Title | - |
| Description | Prepared derived variables and validation of the results of the TS Physical Activity module according to the QA reports NAKO-127 (DF100K), NAKO-417 (DF200k) and NAKO-941 (2U). The Global Physical Activity Questionnaire (GPAQ) is prepared in accordance with the WHO analysis guide (https://www.who.int/ncds/surveillance/steps/resources/GPAQ_Analysis_Guide.pdf). For the activity areas surveyed, there are 5 subdomains: intensive and moderate physical activity at work, physical activity when travelling and intensive and moderate physical activity during leisure time. - The naming of the variables is based on the GPAQ analysis guide. However, in order to distinguish the variables on time per week from the variables on MET minutes per week, the syllable met was added to the variable name for the latter. The quality assurance of the GPAQ data indicates overreporting of physical activity. This should be taken into account when analysing and interpreting the GPAQ data. If necessary, the GPAQ data can be calibrated using accelerometry data. |

4.21.1.1 Validated self-declaration on health insurance status

As part of the quality assurance of the baseline survey, the self-reported health insurance status of the study participants from the touchscreen survey was checked for plausibility using the voluntary information on health insurance (insurance type and name) recorded by the independent trustee office (THS) as part of the consent process and corrected if necessary. Self-reported information on health insurance status was only collected from April 2017 onwards and is therefore only available from around 91,000 participants. The THS collected information on health insurance from 188,974 participants (approx. 92%). The proportion of missing values of 8% is due to participants who were not asked for consent to the collection and scientific use of secondary data from their health insurance or who did not give this consent. Information on health insurance status is available from both sources for 85,644 participants. Verified information was transferred to a new variable on health insurance status (a_kv_1). The degree of validation was also specified in the variable a_kv_1_sure. Self-reported information that matched the information recorded via the THS or was corrected using the reference information was labelled as "certain". All information that could not be verified with certainty (e.g. answer to the insurance backlog: "I don't know" or information changed after the QA) was rated as "not certain".

4.21.1.2 Forecast of health insurance status

For 91,500 NAKO participants who were not asked about their health insurance status during the baseline survey or who did not self-report their health insurance status, a prediction model was used to calculate the type of health insurance (statutory or private) to which they belonged. The procedure is documented at https://www.medrxiv.org/content/

Information on smoking under the age of 5 was classified as implausible, as was quantitative information on smoking more than 120 cigarettes (6 packs) per day or more than 60 cigars, cigarillos or pipes per day. A separate QA of the complete baseline data is still pending, as is the preparation of the questions on the consumption of e-cigarettes, shisha and the like. |

4.26.1.1 Tobacco

By neglecting any missing intensity information and taking into account the information on the Vascular Explorer, more smokers are detected in the variable a_smok_stat_noint than in a_smok_stat_qn (in the DF100k this concerns approx. 120 never smokers and 535 former smokers as well as >1,100 with unknown smoking status, who are categorised here as current smokers). For the reasons for quitting smoking, see TS module tobacco (t_tabak).

4.26.2 smoking (U1/2)

|---|---|
| Type | Examination (unit) |
| Superordinate | Smoking, p. 1078 (Project) |
| Name | smoking (U1/2) |
| Title | - |
| Description | Tobacco/smoking U1/U2, version dated 12 October 2018. The modular questionnaire design allows study participants great flexibility in providing quantitative information. These options are readily accepted, but require time-consuming data preparation. The use of the raw questionnaire data for analysis purposes is therefore not recommended. Instead, the derived variables in abg_tabak should be used. The degree of completeness of the data is good overall. The questions on the use of e-cigarettes etc. (only asked in the baseline from April 2017 and not of ex-smokers) and shisha (only asked from the second examination onwards) have yet to be analysed. Baseline data checked in the QA reports NAKO-124 (DF100k) and NAKO-608 (DF200k). |

4.27.1.1 1. usual bedtimes

(1) Die Zeitangaben erfolgen in „Minuten nach Mitternacht“. Eine Zubettgehzeit von 22:00 hat entsprechend den Wert 1320. Beachten Sie dabei: Eine Zubettgehzeit von 00:20 liegt im Folgetag (relativ zu dem in der Itemformulierung angesprochenen „Abend“) und wird als 20+1440 = 1460 kodiert, entsprechend eine Aufstehzeit von 08:00 Uhr als 1920 (Transposition der Werte 0:00 bis 15:00 um 24 h /1440 min). (2) Da Zubettgehzeit, Aufstehzeit und deren Differenz („Time in Bed“) voneinander abhängen, werden sie bei der Plausibilitätsprüfung gemeinsam betrachtet, d.h. nur wenn alle drei Parameter in jeweils als plausibel definierten Korridoren liegen, werden die Eingaben insgesamt als plausibel betrachtet. Die einzelnen Korridore konnten dadurch unter Berücksichtigung der Verteilung der Rohdaten recht großzügig festgelegt werden, was angesichts einer weiten Streuung der Schlafgewohnheiten in der Bevölkerung auch sinnvoll ist (Zubettgehzeit 18:00 bis 08:59 Uhr, Aufstehzeit 01:00 bis 18:00 Uhr, Bettzeit 120 bis 960 min). (3) Einige Probanden haben bei der Eingabe der Einschlafzeit offensichtlich entgegen der Absicht des Eingabemoduls die 12-Stunden-Skala statt der 24-Stunden-Skala benutzt (z.B. 10 Uhr statt 22 Uhr Zubettgehzeit angegeben). Wo die Plausibilitätsprüfung eine solche Fehlangabe dringend nahelegt, wurde sie korrigiert. In der Variable a_bettzeit_plausi ist die Information abgelegt, ob eine solche Korrektur vorgenommen wurde.

4.27.1.2 2. preferred bedtimes

Die Frage nach der präferierten Zubettgeh- bzw. Aufstehzeit ist orientiert an den ersten beiden Fragen des Morningness-Eveningnesss-Questionnnaires (MEQ) [Griefahn et al. (2001). Zur Validität der deutschen Übersetzung des Morningness-Eveningness-Questionnaires von Horne und Östberg. Somnologie 5: 71-80]. Da die Itemformulierungen und Antwortformate der Items d_schl12_2 und d_schl12_1 denen der gewöhnlichen Zubettgeh- bzw. Aufstehzeit (d_schl1, d_schl5) entsprechen, wurden für die Qualitätssicherung identische Verfahren und Plausibilitätschranken gewählt. Dadurch ist eine direkte Vergleichbarkeit der Angaben zu gewöhnlichen (faktischen) und präferierten (hypothetischen) Zeiten gegeben. Die unter „Gewöhnliche Bettzeiten" gemachten Anmerkungen gelten entsprechend.

4.27.1.3 3. insomnia

(1) Die Itemformulierungen entsprechen weitgehend dem Pitsburgh Sleep Quality Index (PSQI). Da nicht alle PSQI-Items integriert sind, ist der PSQI-Summenscore selbst nicht ermittelbar. Unterschiedliche Aspekte des Nachtschafs werden jedoch durch Variablen abgebildet, die Einzelitems bzw. einzelnen PSQI-Komponenten entsprechen. (2) In einem quantitativen Score wird aus den drei PSQI-Variablen, die die drei wesentlichen

Formen insomnischer Beschwerden erfassen (Einschlafstörungen, Durchschlafstörungen, frühzeitiges Erwachen), durch Summenbildung ein 10-stufiger Gesamtwert gebildet (0-9). (3) Eine kategoriale Variable erfasst schlechte Schafqualität bzw. Insomnie in Anlehnung an die Definitionen der DEGS1 [Schlack et al. (2013). Häufigkeit und Verteilung von Schlafproblemen und Insomnie in der deutschen Erwachsenenbevölkerung: Ergebnisse der Studie zur Gesundheit Erwachsener in Deutschland (DEGS1). Bundesgesundheitsblatt Gesundheitsforschung Gesundheitsschutz 56: 740-748]. Schlechte Schlafqualität definierten wir als die Angabe von Einschlafstörungen oder Durchschlafstörungen oder Früherwachen jeweils mindestens dreimal pro Woche in Kombination mit der Angabe einer ziemlich schlechten oder sehr schlechten Schlafqualität. Für die Ausprägung „Insomnie“ ist zusätzlich die Angabe einer Tagesbeeinträchtigung zu fordern, operationalisiert über die Komponente 7 des PSQI (d_schl7, d_schl8).

4.27.1.4 4. respiration

(1) Die Fragen zu Atemstillständen und Schnarchen sind am Berlin-Fragebogen zur Einschätzung des Risikos eines obstruktiven Schlaf-Apnoe-Syndroms orientiert [Netzer et al. (1999). Using the Berlin Questionnaire to identify patients at risk for the sleep apnea syndrome. Ann Intern Med 131: 485-491]. Allerdings sind nicht alle Fragen Berlin-Fragebogens berücksichtigt, die Antwortkategorien weichen leicht ab. Auf die Berechnung eines Scores wurde deshalb verzichtet. (2) Da das originale Antwortformat auch sehr geringe Ereignishäufigkeiten von fraglicher klinischer Relevanz erfasst, wurden unter Verwendung der Cut-offs des Berlin-Fragebogens dichotome Variablen berechnet, die bevorzugt zur Verwendung empfohlen werden. (3) Bei der Variable d_schl9 „Schnarchen“ wurde (anders als bei den übrigen Variablen des Touchscreen-Moduls Schlafgewohnheiten) eine Kategorie „Weiß nicht“ explizit zur Auswahl angeboten und von ca. 1/5 der Probanden gewählt. Da bei den dichotomen Variablen die Weiß-nicht-Kategorie je nach Auswertungszweck als Missing eingeordnet

5.2 Nutrition

|---|---|
| Type | Project |
| Superordinate | other questionnaires, p. 1247 (Program) |
| Title | Nutrition |
| Name | Nutrition |
| Description | As part of the initial examination of the NAKO Health Study (01.01.2014 to 30.09.2019), the nutrition module consisting of the nutrition questionnaires sv24 (24h food list, 24h-FL) and FFQ (food frequency questionnaire) was established as a level 1 module and continued in the second examination (01.10.2019 to 08.2024). The nutrition questionnaires were provided by the German Institute of Human Nutrition and offered to the study participants for completion. The questionnaires could be completed digitally or, if desired, as a paper version. The sv24 serves as a repeated survey on the previous day's diet (Freese et al. 2014). This is a simplified survey of the consumption/non-consumption without portion information of certain food and dietary supplements. The FFQ is an instrument that asks about food consumption in the last 12 months. In particular, it asks about the frequency of food consumption. At the beginning of the initial examination, at least 2 (voluntarily up to 4) independent sv24 and an FFQ should be collected from each study participant. In the course of the initial examination, it was determined that participation in the nutrition module was low, and it was therefore decided that missing nutrition questionnaires should be completed in the second examination. In this context, the importance of the dietary survey was also reaffirmed and the SOP was amended to the effect that 4 independent sv24 and 1 FFQ should be collected together in the first and second examinations. The aim of the nutrition module is to estimate the usual diet of the study participants in order to characterise them according to their food intake and to investigate the health effects of food and nutrient intake. In addition, the derivation of further parameters such as calorie intake and sugar, salt or fat intake from certain food (sub)groups is planned. * |

5.2.1 Derived variables nutrient intake

|---|---|
| Type | Examination (unit) |
| Superordinate | Nutrition, p. 1253 (Project) |
| Name | Derived variables nutrient intake |
| Title | Derived variables nutrient intake |

|---|---|
| Description | Derived variables dietary nutrient intake calculated from SV24 & FFQ2 of QA reports NAKO-492 (DF200k), NAKO-113 (DF100k) and NAKO-939 (U2 and baseline DF200k). For a more comprehensive data set calculated from FFQ2, see Derived Variables Nutriintake. The quality report on the nutrition module includes data from 204,706 study participants who took part in the nutrition survey during the baseline survey of the NAKO Health Study and during the second examination. Due to the possibility of completing further sv24s and the FFQ during the second examination in order to obtain 4 completed sv24s and a completed FFQ, 4 sv24s and an FFQ are now available for 71,569 participants instead of just 22,472 participants. For 152,304 people, 1 FFQ and at least 1 sv24 are available. Based on the methodology used, data on usual intake and nutrients consumed can be estimated for 152,304 participants who completed at least one sv24 and one FFQ. Although nutrition was a level 1 module in which all study participants were required to take part, only 74% of the data were usable for scientific analyses. On the other hand, it was found that when a nutrition questionnaire was started, it was often completed in full, so missing and inconsistent information was a minor problem. There were no significant differences in the completion status between the sv24 and the FFQ. There were no gender-specific differences in the completeness of completion. However, it was observed that study participants with a lower level of education and a higher body mass index achieved a lower level of completeness. Overall, there was sufficient data available to estimate the usual intake and the nutrients consumed. This information was returned to the ZDM for 152,304 participants with at least one usable sv24 and one FFQ and can now be applied for scientific analyses. In addition, information is provided for each participant on how many usable sv24s and whether a usable FFQ was available. This allows users of usual consumption to perform sensitivity analyses and decide what requirements for available data they place on participants in order to include them. |

5.2.2 Derived variables food consumption

|---|---|
| Type | Examination (unit) |
| Superordinate | Nutrition, p. 1253 (Project) |
| Name | Derived variables food consumption |
| Title | Derived variables food consumption |

|---|---|
| Description | Derived variables nutrition-usual food consumption according to the QA reports NAKO-492 (DF200k), NAKO-113 (DF100k) and NAKO-939 (U2 and baseline DF200k). Calculated from information in FFQ and SV24 questionnaires. The quality report on the nutrition module includes data from 204,706 study participants who took part in the nutrition survey during the baseline survey of the NAKO Health Study and during the second examination. Due to the possibility of completing additional sv24 and the FFQ during the second examination in order to obtain 4 completed sv24 and one completed FFQ, 4 sv24 and one FFQ are now available for 71,569 participants instead of only 22,472 participants. 1 FFQ and at least 1 sv24 are available for 152,304 people. Based on the methodology used, data on usual diet and nutrient intake can be estimated for 152,304 participants who completed at least one sv24 and one FFQ. Although nutrition was a level 1 module in which all study participants were required to take part, only 74% of the data were usable for scientific analyses. On the other hand, it was found that when a nutrition questionnaire was started, it was often completed in full, so missing and inconsistent information was a minor problem. There were no significant differences in the completion status between the sv24 and the FFQ. There were no gender-specific differences in the completeness of completion. However, it was observed that study participants with a lower level of education and a higher body mass index achieved a lower level of completeness. Overall, there was sufficient data available to estimate the usual intake and the nutrients consumed. This information was returned to the ZDM for 152,304 participants with at least one usable sv24 and one FFQ and can now be applied for scientific analyses. In addition, information is provided for each participant on how many usable sv24 and whether a usable FFQ was available. This allows users of usual consumption to perform sensitivity analyses and decide what requirements for available data they place on participants in order to include them. |

5.2.7 Derived variables FFQ/ SV24 nutrition info

|---|---|
| Type | Examination (unit) |
| Superordinate | Nutrition, p. 1253 (Project) |
| Name | Derived variables FFQ/ SV24 nutrition info |
| Title | Derived variables nutrition info |
| Description | Derived variables Nutrition Info contains: a) Error status variables calculated from the data of the EPIC-Potsdam Food Frequency Questionnaire 2 (FFQ2) (NAKO-968). b) Information on completion duration, subject identification, duration of the survey, number of completed SV24 and the distance to the baseline examination calculated from the information in the FFQ2 and SV24 questionnaires (which were completed >= 70%). The quality report on the nutrition module includes data from 204,706 study participants who took part in the nutrition survey during the baseline survey of the NAKO Health Study and during the second examination. Due to the possibility of completing additional sv24s and the FFQ during the second examination in order to obtain 4 completed sv24s and a completed FFQ, 4 sv24s and an FFQ are now available for 71,569 participants instead of just 22,472 participants. 1 FFQ and at least 1 sv24 are available. Based on the methodology used, data on usual diet and nutrient intake can be estimated for 152,304 participants who completed at least one sv24 and one FFQ. Although nutrition was a level 1 module in which all study participants were required to take part, only 74% of the data were usable for scientific analyses. for 152,304 people. On the other hand, it was found that when a dietary questionnaire was started, it was often completed in full; missing and contradictory information was therefore a secondary problem. There were no significant differences in the completion status between the sv24 and the FFQ. There were no gender-specific differences in the completeness of completion. However, it was observed that study participants with a lower level of education and a higher body mass index achieved a lower level of completeness. Overall, there was sufficient data available to estimate the usual intake and the nutrients consumed. This information was returned to the ZDM for 152,304 participants with at least one usable sv24 and one FFQ and can now be applied for scientific analyses. In addition, information is provided for each participant on how many usable sv24s and whether a usable FFQ was available. This allows users of usual consumption to perform sensitivity analyses and decide what requirements for available data they place on participants in order to include them. |

5.3.1.1 Questionnaire on physical activity in the past 12 months

The QUAP questionnaire provides comprehensive information to characterise the seasonal variation of physical activity by capturing the seasonal variation of activity through an extended time perspective of 12 months. It represents the different domains of physical activity well according to the existing literature and thus extends the other modules for recording physical activity in the NAKO Health Study. When analysing the data, it should be noted that approximately 1% of the numerical values were read incorrectly during the automatic reading and verification of the questionnaires and have not yet been corrected. A conservative approach was taken when adjusting the data in order to underestimate rather than overestimate activity times and intensity levels.

5.3.1.1.6 E Sports and movement

Bitte geben Sie die beiden Sportarten an, die Sie in den vergangenen 12 Monaten am häufigsten betrieben haben. Für die Datenbereinigung wurden folgende Annahmen getroffen: Wenn mindestens ein Wert für saisonal variierende Sportaktivität eingetragen wurde, wurden fehlende Angaben durch den Wert für "über 12 Monate" (falls vorhanden) ersetzt, andernfalls durch "0". Bei Konflikten zwischen den Angaben für "über 12 Monate gleichbleibend" und "saisonal verschieden" wurden die Angaben zu "saisonal verschieden" verwendet. Freitextangaben zur Sportart wurden soweit wie möglich nachcodiert. Auf Grundlage der genannten Sportart und der berichteten körperlichen Anstrengungen konnte nach Ainsworth (2011) das metabolische Äquivalent (MET) berechnet werden.

|---|---|
| Type | Examination (unit) |
| Superordinate | Abdominal fat ultrasound, p. 1609 (Project) |
| Name | Abdominal fat ultrasound |
| Title | Evaluation variables abdominal fat ultrasound |

|---|---|
| Description | Evaluation variables abdominal fat ultrasound. Mean values, which can be used for analyses, were calculated from the duplicate measured values of the SAT and VAT, adjusted according to QS report NAKO-414. These mean values were distributed slightly skewed to the right for men and women. On average, the SAT was slightly lower in men than in women (2.0 cm vs. 2.3 cm), while the VAT was significantly more pronounced (7.4 cm vs. 5.5 cm). Age-stratified percentiles showed that the SAT increased continuously with increasing age in women, while it reached a maximum in middle age in men. VAT increased steadily with age in both sexes. The reproducibility of the measured values when measured twice by one examiner was determined using an intraclass correlation coefficient (ICC). The ICC was above 0.9 for all examiners for both the SAT and VAT measurements, which is why excellent intra-observer reliability can be assumed. The comparison of the mean values of the individual study centres showed large regional differences for both the SAT and the VAT. This observation could be based on a cluster effect, as has also been observed with other measurements such as BMI. In order to check the validity of the measurement, a random sample of the images of each examiner with at least 50 examinations was evaluated as part of the DF100k (QA of the first approx. 100,000 baseline examinations) using a quality score for measurement accuracy and image quality and the respective proportion of correctly performed SAT and VAT measurements was assigned as additional variables to all examinations performed by this examiner. |

| Name | Abdominal ultrasound |
| Title | Ultrasound examination of the abdomen |
| Description | Ultrasound examination of the abdomen. In 350 cases, the ultrasound images were remeasured due to implausible measurements or incorrectly recognised target structures. Further corrections were made on the basis of the available examination comments. The proportion of missing measurements was 7% overall, although there were large differences between the study centres. Mean values that can be used for analyses were calculated from the adjusted, duplicate measured values of the SAT and VAT. These are shown in abg_usa. |

6.2.2 AGE-Reader Completion

|---|---|
| Type | Examination (unit) |
| Superordinate | AGE-Reader, p. 1620 (Project) |
| Name | AGE-Reader Completion |
| Title | - |
| Description | AGE reader completion. The following anomalies were identified when checking the AGE reader data of the 100k datafreeze: Despite the calibration measures, there are obviously device effects that were noticeable when comparing the mean autofluorescence (AF) of the SCs and were confirmed by testing in SCs with more than one AGE reader (Neubrandenburg and Augsburg). There were some significant differences between the individual measuring devices (difference of 0.06 in Neubrandenburg and 0.24 in Augsburg). The device effects can be taken into account, for example, by using device-specific z-standardised AF values in evaluations. When analysing centre differences, the device effect cannot be distinguished from the centre effect, which is why we do not recommend publishing such analyses. In addition, several devices were temporarily used as surrogate devices in different centres. Furthermore, a peak in the mean AF values is noticeable at the beginning of the baseline study, which was obviously caused in particular by increased measured values in the Berlin-Nord centre in the months of August to November 2014, which should be excluded from analyses if necessary. Implausible AFR measured values of 0 or >10 were observed for 15 cases. These were identified by a corresponding comment and the status 12 (SOP-compliant completed, missing values). |

6.3.3 MVPA

|---|---|
| Type | Examination (unit) |
| Superordinate | Accelerometry, p. 1635 (Project) |
| Name | MVPA |
| Title | Time spent in moderate to vigorous activity (MVPA) |
| Description | Estimates of time (in minutes per day, averaged over available days as appropriate) spent in MVPA based on various algorithm parameters, including: epoch length, bout duration criteria and acceleration threshold. Epochs above a certain acceleration measure (ENMO or MAD) threshold were categorised as MVPA. Studies that can be used to select an (age specific) MVPA threshold include e.g., Hildebrand 2014/2016: adults (21-61 years), ActiGraph, hip, ENMO: Light: 47.4 mg, Moderate: 69.1 mg, Vigorous: 258.7 mg; Sanders 2019: older adults (60-68 years), ActiGraph, hip, ENMO: Light 6/15 mg, Moderate 19/69 mg; Migueles 2021: older adults (?70 years), ActiGraph, hip, ENMO: Light 7 mg, Moderate 14 mg; Vähä-Ypyä 2015: adults (35 +/- 11 years), Hookie AM20, hip, MAD: Moderate: 91 mg, Vigorous: 414 mg. Caution: The MVPA concept has various problems (see also publication). We therefore recommend the use of ENMO and MAD. Should MVPA nevertheless have to be used for certain applications, one could consider using time spent in MVPA based on a 1-minute epoch without bout detection while varying the threshold. Check aksum_invalid and aksum_insuffwt for particpants to be excluded from analyses. |

| Name | Measurement results echocardiography |
| Title | - |
| Description | Results of the manual reading of the 3D echocardiography image data. Missing values are generally due to insufficient quality or incorrect collection of the image data. The proportion of examinations in which all 8 measured values are missing is less than 1%, as is the proportion of examinations in which all 8 measured values are present. For technical reasons, it was not possible to collect the 3D variables at the beginning of the reading. The analysis of the extreme values of the various variables by gender, age or examiner did not reveal any indications of implausible or obviously incorrect, erroneous data. |

6.7.3.1 Evaluation variables

The basis for the HR-related performance parameters is the adjusted mean heart rate (HR) at the end of each exercise stage. The HR-related performance parameters were calculated using the physical work capacity (PWC) principle on the one hand and the estimated maximum oxygen uptake (VO2max) on the other. The PWC principle is used to determine the power output when a defined HR threshold is exceeded. Relative HR thresholds are particularly suitable here, as they allow the age-related decline in HR to be taken into account. The PWC 75% (variable a_erg_pwc75 or a_erg_pwc75_kg) indicates the power output (in W or W/kg) of a participant when he or she reaches 75% of his or her own maximum heart rate. The PWC130 (variable a_erg_pwc130p or a_erg_pwc130p_kg) indicates the power a participant produces when he or she reaches an HR of 130/min. The VO2max (variable a_erg_vo2_max) was calculated in two stages: first, the maximum power (in W) was estimated using linear regression (variable a_erg_wm_kg) based on the observed HR increase over the exercise levels and the age-based maximum heart rate limit according to Tanaka (208 - 0.7 x basis_age). The VO2max was calculated from the estimated maximum performance using the formula of the American College of Sports Medicine: VO2max= 33.5 + 12.24 x wattmax_kg.

6.11.1.1 Neuropsychological test battery

The neuropsychological test battery comprises 6 individual tests, four of which were taken from the CERAD_Plus test battery (Morris JC 1989). The module-specific results test showed the expected results. Women performed better than men in all tests, younger people performed better than older people in numerous tests and test subjects with a higher level of education performed better than those with a shorter period of education. Furthermore, German language skills (see variable a_ses_deutsch) had a strong influence on all test results.

6.11.1.1.2 Test 2: Word list

Test of verbal learning and memorisation skills. The respondent is asked to memorise a list of 12 words, which is first played twice in succession (immediate recall). After each presentation of the word list, the respondent is asked to name all the words that he/she has memorised within 60 seconds. After test 4, the respondent is asked to freely name all the memorised words within 60 seconds without playing them again (delayed recall). 10 of the 12 words represent the word list of the CERAD-Plus neuropsychological test battery. This list was supplemented by 2 terms that have the same word frequency in the German language as the 10 in order to avoid ceiling effects in younger participants.

6.11.1.1.3 Test 3: Colour-word interference test (Stroop test)

Multidimensional performance test that measures elementary information processing skills (executive skills). It aims to process conflicting information and to measure the "response conflict" or the "lack of response inhibition" or the "lack of selective attention". It is therefore also a measure of "concentration effectiveness" or distractibility. Only Scales 2 and 3 are used in the NAKO Health Study. The proband is instructed to name the print colour of the box or the colour words in both sheets. In the interference condition of the test (panel 3), the print colour and colour word do not match.

6.11.1.1.4 Test 4: Number span backwards

A subtest of the Hamburg-Wechsler-test for adults, which is designed to measure working memory performance and thus immediate verbal recall. The proband is given a series of numbers to repeat backwards. Starting with two numbers, the number of numbers in a row increases until correct reproduction is no longer possible in two attempts (maximum of 9 numbers in a row).

6.11.1.1.6 Test 6: Number sequence test

The ZRT can be seen as a proxy for a comprehensive assessment of fluid intelligence. It requires the completion of a series of numbers by inductively recognising and applying a set of rules. A block-adaptive version with six items based on the Woodcock-Johnson III (WJ-III) test was used. The reliability of the estimation of the ability parameters must be regarded as limited due to the brevity of the ZRT used in comparison to the reliabilities achieved with the time-consuming task batteries usually used in intelligence testing.
